GURNEY HOT WATER HEATER And Ventilator.

"NOTHING CAN SURPASS IT."

The Gurney Heater, placed in my house two seasons, is a possession indeed. For its ability to maintain a comfortable temperature in moderate cold weather nothing can equal it, and for keeping the house warm in extremely cold weather NOTHING CAN SURPASS IT.

The ease with which it is managed is a surprise to us, And is a great economy in coal. Yours truly,

ON CHARGE OF MUTINY.

Crew of a Schooner Arrested.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 15. Deputy U. S. Marshals Amblis and Bleadon yesterday arrested the crew of the schooner Adaline Bailey, of Camden, N. J., Captain Geo. W. Hudson, bound from Philadelphia for Portland, Me., with coal on charges of mutiny. The crew, five in number, include a Turk, a Greek, a Norwegian, a German and a Russian. They say on account of overwork and poor food they refused to do the captain's bidding on Sunday. They allege that they were deceived in Philadelphia where they were engaged by runners. The officers went down the bay on the tug Taurus and came up with the vessel five miles from Boundary Hook. The crew were brought here and lets in the custom house.

OLD SAINTS DISSATISFIED.

Over Their Views in the Parade.

BOSTON, July 15. The Journal says there is considerable dissatisfaction among the old salts who are members of various naval organizations of the United States Navy, as they have been assigned by Gen. Osborne to the column left of the big parade on Aug. 13. There are sixteen naval veterans associations in the country and also about a dozen Grand Army naval posts, and the Mechanics' Association of this city are making arrangements which will do at least result in a separate of naval veterans.

NIGHT OF TERROR.

A Yacht Capsizes with a Party of Four Aboard.

Only One Rescued, the Others Meeting a Watery Grave.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 15. On Saturday last the small yacht Marion, belonging to the Bay View Yacht Club, of City Point, left Boston in charge of Captain Warren Kimball, with a party consisting of H. W. Kimball, F. Goldsmith and Benjamin Cobb of Boston, for a two weeks trip along the coast.

About 9 o'clock Monday night the yacht struck a sunken ledge off Rye Beach and careened over on her side. The water commenced to pour in at a rapid rate and Captain Locke ordered all hands to get in the tender, a mere cockle shell affair handily big enough for two persons. Hardly had the four men entered the boat, when a heavy sea struck her and she capsized, throwing all into the sea. The entire party succeeded in reaching the boat and by assisting one another managed to get astride her keel where they remained for some time. The sea, meanwhile continually breaking over the party. They continued in this way for about two hours when Kimball was washed off the boat and drowned. Captain Locke and Mr. Cobb tried to work the boat toward the shore but to no avail, and as the captain was trying to climb on the bottom of the boat once more he was Washed Away.

Only Goldsmith and Cobb now remained and they floated for some distance when a huge wave came, righting the boat but throwing both men away. Cobb succeeded in reaching the boat, but Goldsmith was not seen again.

This morning about three o'clock John W. Doynes, a fisherman, while going to the fishing grounds picked up Cobb in an exhausted condition holding on to the exhausted condition holding on to the stern of the boat and brought him to this port. Captain Locke was married and leaves a wife and several children, who reside in South Boston. The others were unmarried.

The Victims' Names.

DEDHAM, Mass., July 15. Edward Kimball, one of the victims of the yachting disaster off Rye Beach, belonged in this town and was engaged in the confectionery business in Boston. Young Goldsmith lived in Jamaica Plain. Benjamin Cobb, the only one saved, is a resident of this town. Messrs. Kimball and Cobb have left for the scene of the accident. There is much excitement in the town.

INDIANA.

A Compromise Attempted.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 15. A compromise has been effected between the officials of the "big four" system and the brakemen who demand shorter hours and a general advance of 10 per cent in wages. It is thought that a satisfactory agreement will be reached to-day with the conductors who made similar demands.

REPUBLICAN County Convention.

The Republican Electors of the County of Penobscot are requested to meet in

CITY HALL, BANGOR,

TUESDAY, THE 7TH DAY OF AUGUST NEXT,

at 10 o'clock A. M.

The Republican County Convention, that will be held on Tuesday next, August 7th, will be held in City Hall, Bangor. The convention will doubtless be largely attended, as both the committee already have the call and will speak very loud in September.

The New York Tribune has got out of breath in less than the Philadelphia Times. For months it has confidently cited that paper as one of the reliable journals of the country, and now it comes out in bitter denunciation, declaring it to be guilty of "a full political lie." The Telegraph, which has ordinarily placed a premium on the Post's falsehoods, can now appreciate the folly of catering to such slaves.

The grave editorials which were all repeated at one in this city Tuesday failed to impress. It was a Democratic move evidently calculated to influence the action of the State convention at Augusta. As the old delegation in attendance at the last named gathering committed the Bangor press party to a Breckin campaign, it was of course left for the other newspaper and to find as quickly as it could its equipoise.

The Commercial refers to the defeat of the Rockland resolutions with the remark, confidently, that Senator Fessenden will hereafter be "politically dead." Of course it is. That fact ought to be evident unanimously, but however the end may be it is most unlikely for the good of the nation in this country, at a given time and place. The sole consideration of the British policy in this country explains the object of the country editors and its language some months since. Almost behind their manufactured mask of fear and hate and love and trust and there are the truth as plainly. The truth about the Rockland resolutions was, instead of agreeing with the republican editor in their effort to the country that the statement may want to push by the previous convention, evidently desired to have them push with to all belligerents. The public meetings were being held in England about a resolution contrary to the spirit of expression, becoming almost by declaring their course and will go a long way towards crushing the vitals of the rebellion away. As regards England during her relations to American problems we believe to the opinion that John Bull will happily cut all his eyes to spite his face. He thinks too much of the almighty dollar.

The Commercial will take the statements of the leading Republican papers of Iowa, in which the Governor of Pennsylvania and the Governor of Connecticut, as to the prosperity of the Republican party, in preference to the evidence of its own eyes and ears. And by many days from the Commercial decried the failure of the crops, the inference which is drawn from them were doubtless attributed to despair.—Commercial.

We suppose that the editor of the Commercial really thinks he answered Mr. Fabyan's communication in the New York Independent. One of his tellings is to insist that he does great execution with his pen, but he stands entirely alone in this belief. Mr. Fabyan dealt in facts upon which the editor of the Commercial made about as much impression as would a goose quill thrown against a stone wall. As to the inconsistency which called the attention of our contemporary to the fact that the statement in the Reporter was a reduction of official returns and nothing in any sense from last year's returns with the figures given by Gov. Lincoln, the Commercial no doubt thinks that in arriving at the statement of facts given by the Governor it "worked up figures," as shown the "efficacy" of such figures, how as it seems, or pretends to, that it has the proof of his Fabyan figures. This may be satisfactory to the editor but it will hardly strike any intelligent reader as convincing.

Rules and Prohibition.

Which of two Wises do deliver we will adopt? Is it a question of Rules or Prohibition?

This is a timely question from a paper that has on all occasions championed the rulers. Every time an attempt has been made to enforce the law in aid of the Democratic has invariably resulted in disarming of it. Instead of an honorable opposition to the law it has the great part occupied a position so disgraceful that its course has been repudiated by many other Democratic papers in the State, although they have the same opinion of the inefficiency of the prohibitory law that the Democratic organ has. Even the Democratic convention has committed the party to a Rules campaign, but when that question is submitted to the final arbitration of the people and ballots down, as it will be in September, the Democratic journal of accepting the verdict of the majority will produce the contest of the prohibitory opposition for the law. Indeed if we had a local option law and Bangor should vote as Rockland has just voted to against the law, and for the subject laid as it is to-day. The best of a law is its effect upon the people of the parties States. The cities where the law is not enforced form a small portion of the State at large. What Maine's condition as a whole has been greatly improved under the prohibitory law admits of no question. The people adopted the present law after trying without success the Rules system, and the Democratic leaders themselves admit that they have no probability whatever of repealing it. Instead of an effort against the enforcement of prohibition here the people failed to gratify it when submitted to a vote.

The Rockland idea with a Rules, of the Commercial would fill as much by coming law as existing statutes and make it all prohibitory by repeal by enactment. In Rockland, with its open liquor opposition, there is the nominal "Rules outlook," or of liquor shops. The only fact, but such shops being so few and a small fraction of the whole, the Rules and are now doing the trade of the town, showing that small cities cannot be the provision of the law. So much of the opposition of the Democratic Rockland Courier-Gazette to enforcing the statute in the courts, hoping for a decision that will enable them to proceed against the offenders. In one week there are 15 liquor retail saloons and wholesale dealers in Rockland to supply them. Another has forty-four retail places and dispenses wholesale spirits. This is the interesting condition of things under a High Rules law, showing that the republican will very soon stop here.

Bigler, of the Bangor city, has acted the opposite and left out others to do. He knows to prohibition vs. Rules and says that opposition Rules will confer a wretch that will discourage asking the claim that law people cannot be enforced in the way to legislate the same shops.

For the Election Bill

(Wash. Cor. N. Y. Tribune.)

At this time, when the bill to amend the National election laws is coming to the front once, held by a Republican Democratic caucus, it may not be amiss to recall some of the deliberate opposition of the Republican party to its opposition, Democrats will in Richmond. This may show to be of the most practical interest to Popular consideration of supposing a remedy for some of the evils of the party as put in operation—a good, at least, as a remedy in many points of England. And as loyal members of the party, whether in the House or Senate, can always the statement that the platform and documents of a National Convention of the party are binding upon him.

While Congress and committees of members of Congress, through the Republican party, exhibited the rights of colored persons, their power, under the right to vote and to be voted for, to protect their rights, and to punish those who violate them, the Democratic party, in the Democratic States, denied

"Unwillingly to look for Kaufmann, the abducted foreman; for whose recapture a reward had been offered; but swiftly to say what kind of place this would be for keeping out of sight a body of men till they were wanted."

"If Kaufmann has been abducted, he takes it very easily," said Walter, as he had thought before, describing his adventures with that respect not long ago.

"To be sure he does; he is part of the society—one of our college chums, as it were. His disappearance was only a piece of diplomacy, and he has his work to do elsewhere."

Walter gave a slight whistle.

"It hinders still more the cause of the workmen against the government at Mexico [illegible] on the ground of the prevailing lack of security for person and property. Though, to be sure, there are 'rifle companies' enough in the country without increasing them.

"What do you think it did the other day? Broke into Mr. Wharton's house at the capital, and took from his office, though they were under the seals of the British legation, seven hundred thousand dollars. Just before that their renewal at Tuxpic seized twenty mule loads of silver under pretext that it was being clandestinely exported. Another time a white contractor of five million dollars, on the way to Tampico, was confronted. Employment was promised them [illegible] in that part of the country were settled. It will be a long time [illegible] can tell you, before that day comes. Things are in a desperate way, and no mistake."

"And the meaning of all this is"—

"That a new era is dawning for our unhappy country. Our central committee at Mexico has long been pulling the wires; the preliminaries are prepared, the blow is about to be struck. My dear general, my boys, my [illegible]. He looked excitedly around, hardly daring to breathe the secret even at such a place. 'When we brought her here before, he did not have a fair chance; but this time he will succeed. She will just suit his purpose, [illegible] and give Maria at last a position worthy of the name.'

"What! When is it to be for I have flown to whose safety I mentioned. In my hermit kitchen I have heard nothing of all this."

"You would have heard assuredly more if you had been outside, for the secret has been accidentally kept. Nothing is yet left here beyond a vague speculation that the unnatural government itself, realizing from our folly to smother, does not appreciate the importance of the crisis. But I hope many of the very classmates of the estate
